Contest Seen In School Elections

Contested races have developed in ... local and area school board elections, with deadline for filing in the April 7 elections being Wednesday.

At Cameron, four candidates have filed for three posts, with incumbents Bently Hause, Forrest Sapp and Charles McDermott filing for re-election and John Henderson Jr. filing as a first-time candidate.

Three places are to be filled on the Buckholts school board with five candidates filing for the places.

Incumbents W. E. Beckhusen, Calvin Rachui and Elbert Svetlik are seeking re-election. New candidates filing include Mrs. Glenda Ruzicka and Mrs. Gladys Allison.

That election will be held April 7, according to School Supt. Leon Brady.

At Rogers, no one has filed for election. Terms of Sherman Mayfield and C. O. Gunter will expire in April.

Filing for re-election at Milano are incumbents E. C. Westbrook and Arnold Kornegay. New candidate in the race for two places is W. L. Moore.

As of Tuesday, no filings had been received at Thorndale, where terms of James Terry and Herman Weise will be expiring.

Hugh McMillan, incumbent county school board trustee, has filed for re-election.

Four-Way Stop To Replace Traffic Light

The city will remove the traffic light in downtown Cameron and replace it with four-way stop signs, following action by the city council and its regular meeting Tuesday evening.

It was noted that the light is out of order.

Discussion was also held on the purchase of two new fire trucks, one to fight grass fires and the other to be like the city's present truck. The grass fire truck would be similar to those now used in Rockdale, Belton and Hearne.

Frie chief Monroe Bruedigan and Jimmy Thompson met with council to discuss the trucks. Thompson said the tank on the grass fire truck could also be used as a mixing unit for "wet water" to fight any gasoline fires.

A bid was opened and awarded for over 100 new street signs, including stop signs and school signs, at a total cost of $816.

Following a lengthy report by A. W. McCullin, chairman of the Annual Arrangements Planning Commission, the council voted to adopt a resolution endorsing the program with any finances needed to be made from the city's general fund.

McCullin said it is not known what part of the program's financing will have to come to the city, but much of it could be in credits, allowed for work the city has already done in the line with the program.

The Annual Arrangements Program is a pilot one in which Cameron, along with 129 other cities, has been invited to participate. The program offers funds of $124,000 a year for five years if the city chooses to participate.

McCullin told the council that the commission had been on a heavy schedule of meetings, up to five a day, in order to have the plan prepared in time to present to Housing and Urban Development (HUD) which is adminsitering the new program.

Councilman Bob Clark expressed concern about how the city would afford its part of the program's finances. Mayor Gene Blake said he was ready for that question and said it could be worked out that the program in no way would force raising of city taxes.

He explained that revenue sharing funds and sales tax receipts can be used to replace money out of the city's general fund to be used as matching funds. "We can spend government money as long as they give it to us," he said.

The report by McCullin included plans for proposed improvements in the fields of streets, housing, fire protection, sewer, and youth. He showed maps to the council as he explained the commission's plans.

The response to Cameron, this historic graveyard for newspapermen, is in the 100 block of East First Street. Come see it, still improving.

I look ahead. Delays have slowed some planning for your Herald, but only slowed. The year's been spanned.

Apologies to those affected but the technology of change, here and there in the productive future, takes time.

113-113-113

As if to encourage a new jail start, a man got out of Milam County's old one the other day. He removed bricks around the bars while in the "run around" and went over the side. At this printing, he is still free.

113-113-113

Rural home burglaries are on the rise, according to the Milam Sheriff's Dept. They, whoever they are, take pianos, furniture, anything that will slide into a truck or trailer, I suppose.

The theft problem is far from limited to these or any other city limits. And we don't just mean cattle, which a few of have been taken in recent years in Milam County.

WOMEN'S LIB NEW?

Not really! Hear about it all the time and am reminded by pesonal experience it is not.

My mother was a railroad telegrapher as an 18-year-old in 1917 in Oklahoma. She survived the experience during the first great war to end wars to become a mother and later newspaper woman in the Midwest.

She had drive and acumen. It burst a vessel in her head at 62.

Schools Ready For Open House Thursday

Final preparations have been made this week for the Cameron schools open house to be held Thursday (today) from 7 until 9 p.m.

Parents and friends are invited to visit classrooms at Ben Milam, Ada Henderson, Cameron Junior High and Yoe High schools, where teachers will be in classrooms to welcome visitors.

The open house is set in conjunction with Public Schools Week, which is being held in Texas this week.

A highlight of the open house will be the Yoe High Science Fair, with students' science projects on exhibit at Yoe High. Results of judging in the fair will be on display Thursday night.

Open houses are also being held Thursday at Milano and Rogers schools, along with special PTA meetings.

Dangerous Buildings Ordinance In Force

Notice is being given to the public in this issue of The Herald about the City Council passing a new ordinance providing for the removal, repair or demolition of any uninhabited building, dwelling, or structure which is a "dangerous building."

E. A. Bigbee, city building inspector, will determine whether any building comes under the new ordinance, and told The Herald how the new rule will be enforced.

He said the owner of the building will be notified by registered mail that he has a certain number of days option to start repairs or remodeling of the building to meet the city's housing code, or tear down the building and clear off the lot.

The building inspector will attach a notice to the building stating that it is dangerous. The ordinance provided for a fine not excedding $25 for removing the sign. Second offense will bring a fine not exceeding $100.

If the owner of the building does not comply with the ordinance the city building department can begin demolishing the structure. Any proceeds from the salvage will be used to offset costs, and any amount owing the city will be assessed against the owner's taxes.

Owner of the building has the right of appeal to an appeal board of five persons, appointed by the city.

Information on file for the papeal board will include the condition of the building and photograph, Bigbee said.

If the appeal board upholds the building inspection department, the owner may still register a written appeal to the City Council.

Burlisons Moving To Shreveport

Delbert Burlison, manager of the local J. C. Penney department store, has resigned to accept the position of assistant manager of Bealls Department Store in Shreveport, La.

The Burlisons will leave Cameron Friday.

Burlison has been active in local civic organizations, including the Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club and Cameron Day Care Center. He has also headed drives for the March of Dimes and the United Fund.

A new manager for the local department store is expected to be sent in the near future.

Cameron Churches Plan Citywide Census

Sunday, March 18 has been set for the date of a religious census of Cameron planned by the Cameron Ministers Association. The census will be in conjunction with "Key 73", a nationwide evangelical effort which also includes Canada.

The census will start at 2 p.m. with teams from different churches in the city calling on each home that day.

A copy of the census card will appear in The Cameron Herald next week to be used by persons who will not be at home that Sunday afternoon. They are asked to fill out the card and attach it to the front door for the teams to collect.

This Key 73 project is a continuation of the total program which was begun at Christmas, with everyone being asked to take time for prayer for two minutes each noon.

This emphasis is being carried on by each church in its prayer groups, and also in special groups with women meeting together for bible study and prayer. There is also an interdenominational prayer breakfast on the first Monday morning of each month beginning at 6:15 at the Texan Restaurant.

Chairman of the Ministers Association is Rev. Alvis Coleman; secretary, Rev. Ernest L. Helsley; general chairman of Key 73 is Rev. John M. Homerstad; chairman for the religious census project is Father John Geiser; cottage prayer meeting chairman is Rev. H. M. Bowley; evangelistic crusade chairman, Rev. Jim Lafferty.

The big event of Key 73 locally will be the evangelistic crusade which has been set for May 14-20. Dr. Charles McLaughlin will be the crusade speaker. The crusade will be preceded by a series of inter-faith prayer meetings to be held in homes of volunteers. Music for the crusade will be arranged on the local level.

Volunteers Have Two Fire Calls

Cameron volunteer firemen were called to fires Saturday night and Monday with damage reported but no injuries.

A mobile home was heavily damaged in a fire of unknown origin late Saturday night. The home was parked at N. Travis and 14th Street and belongs to Ted Gill. No one was at home when the fire started.

The other fire Monday about 3 p.m. completely destroyed an empty frame house on the Jones Farm near Pettibone.

Commando Summary...

Full honors in Arlington National Cemetery are the least we could do for Cleo A. Noel, Jr., and Curtis Moore after their assassination by Palestinian guerillas.

Killers of the American ambassador to Sudan and charge d'affairs are in Sudanese custody. U. S. officials have recommended the group be executed.

This is another example of international insanity, sanctioned by no one. They are denounced by nationalist friend and foe alike, somewhat like jet high jackers.

The American officials and one Belgian are dead, taken hostage at a reception in honor of Noel and Moore. A couple other diplomats were released before the Palestinians' capture.

Such commando tactics can only be met summarily.

In Houston Gallery...

We congratulate James Brock for entering his work in one of Houston's art galleries.

He has been occupied with relocating his studio and home in recent months. His work, of course, continues to appear in Taos galleries.

But the sculptures he shows in the Houston gallery will be the first formal public showing in Texas' largest city. He has sold work to some individuals there.

Brock's skills in sculpture are making his work an emissary for Cameron and this area as well a broadening introduction into metro Texas art centers.

Talky, Talky...

Another sign of community growth here is a 3.8 percent gain in telephones and a 14.4 percent increase in daily calls in 1972 over 1971.

It takes a lot of communication to maintain the pace of a growing community. It takes more telephones, more copies of newspapers, more electronic connections to meet the need.

It takes a lot of "talky talky talk."

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

SAYS SYNCORP ANSWER TO ENERGY CRISIS

REP. L. C. WYMAN (N.H.) ". . . The natural gas crisis is well known and a future crisis in the form of a domestic crude oil shortage is also acknowledged; yet no solution appears in sight. . .

"Few observers believe that a price increase or even decontrol of natural gas will result in ample new gas being found; the preponderance of opinion is that this will not be the case and that, regardless of the selling price, the shortage of natural gas will continue. . .

"What can the U.S. Government do to assure that the country will be able to meet its energy needs in the 1980's be greater utilization of its large supplies of fossil fuels, such as coal and shale oil?. . . Concern regarding possible antitrust action has probably kept oil companies from major cooperative research efforts. . .

"Clearly, the Government should not be in the business of making the country's gasoline or natural gas. . .

"An alternative merits serious consideration. This would involve the creation of a Government - sponsored, privately owned synthetic fuels corporation which would provide a desirable vehicle to serve the national interest in this area, while maintaining a private enterprise approach. . .

"Creating a privately owned but Government-sponsored company has had a precedent in COMSAT, the COMMUNICATIONS SATELLITE CORPORATION. . . .

"An interesting aspect and parallel between COMSAT and the proposed SYNTHETIC HYDROCARBON FUELS CORPORATION — abbreviated to SYNCORP — is:

"COMSAT is privately owned by included ownership by regulated companies — for example A.T. & T. It is expectable that some of the interstate pipelines companies will invest in SYNCORP. . .

"When COMSAT went public, it attracted great attention as a futures company. This would certainly also be the case for SYNCORP, which should be able to raise more money than COMSAT in view of the scope of its charter. . .

"I am today, therefore introducing a bill to create a Government-chartered Corporation with Federal participation to develop commercially feasible processes for the conversion of coal to oil and gas and a resolution authorizing the office of Emergency Preparedness to contract for the execution of a study to determine the feasibility of creating a SYNTHETIC HYDROCARBON FUELS CORPORATION (SYNCORP) as proposed in my bill (H.R. 220) . . ."

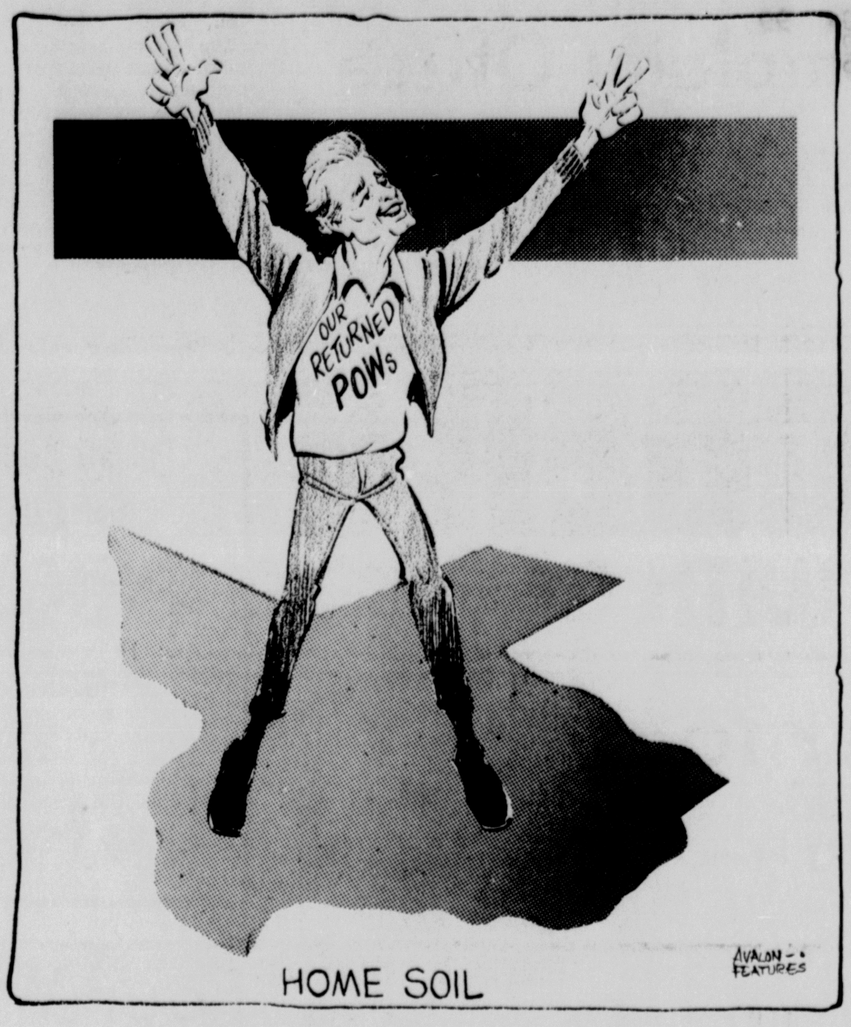
With the price of gasoline, tractor fuel and Home heating fuels soaring, and future supplies in doubt, the public is in a mood to entertain some government action.

The Lonely Heart



Poage Seeks Compromise For REA Loan Program

Congressman W. R. Poage, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee announced today that he and Congressman Archer Nelsen (R-Minn) have suggested a compromise to the problem facing rural telephone and rural electric systems as a result of the Administration's termination of the REA direct loan program as of January 1, 1973.

Congressmen Poage and Nelsen in a joint letter to the members of the House Committee on Agriculture proposed the creation of insured and guaranteed loan program. At the same time this proposal would reserve 2 percent loans through the insured loan funds for those electric and telephone systems which must have this low-cost money to provide adequate service. All other moneys would be loaned from the fund at 5 percent.

"This proposal is being submitted to the Administration and to the electric and telephone borrower associations with the hope that we can arrive at a consensus of opinion," Chairman Poage commented. "On the other hand, we recognize that if approval of a compromise of this nature is unacceptable to any of the interested parties and is not attainable at once many of us on the committee will feel obligated to act favorably on the legislation now before us.

"While we are still working out final details, Congressman Nelsen and I feel that this proposal gives us an opportunity to provide a permanent solution to the REA financing problem but unless all affected parties can generally agree, I doubt that we will have a chance to enact it into law.

"Observing that the pending legislation merely attempts to reinstate the current program, Poage said: "In my opinion it cannot provide the type of permanent solution we are seeking. Ten thousand delegates of the NRECA (National Rural Electric Cooperatives Association) are presently meeting in Dallas and we are making every effort to put this proposal before them for their consideration during their convention.

"I deplore the Administration's action in canceling this program without congressional approval, for as it stands there is no program whatsoever and something must be done to meet the borrowers immediate needs.

"The Administration has claimed to have the authority to make REA loans under the Rural Development Act, but our hearings have revealed through their own testimony yesterday that this would be a difficult, if not impossible, task.

"As one of the authors of the Rural Development Act, I don't believe these loans can be made and I know the Congress did not intend for the Rural Development Act to be used to destroy existing programs that benefit Rural America."

In broad outline, the compromise promise calls for creation of a "Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund," assets of which would come from the current assets of the REA, all loan repayments each year, and all unexpended direct loan appropriations for fiscal year 1973. Initially, loanable assets would approximate $600 million, including $437 million previously appropriated by the Congress and currently impounded by the Administration.

The only new appropriations required under this legislation will be only those moneys which are necessary the fund for lossed sustained on bad loans and interest rate differentials between the interest rates charged on loans by the fund and the cost of moneys to the fund from the private market.

The fund will be available for two types of insured loans: One at a special rate of 2 percent and the other a standard rate of 5 percent. A monetary corridor of between $80,000,000 and $120,000,000 would provide the moneys to be loaned at the special rate and under criteria which can be adjusted by the Administrator to produce a loan level within the statutory corridor.

In addition there is authorized a guaranteed loan program at prevailing private market rates.

Day Care vs. Hospitalization

Even an acutely disturbed mental patient may do just as well, if not better, in a day care program than when fully hospitalized, according to a two-year study supported by the National Institute of Mental Health.

One of the first of its kind in the Nation, the study was conducted at the New York State Psychiatric Institute.

The questions were: Should acutely ill patients live in the community and only get day therapy at the hospital? Or, should they receive fill-time hospitalization?

The answers were, according to the study findings, strongly in favor of the first course. Active treatment arranged in a "day hospital" setting proved to be a feasible alternative to inpatient care or full hospitalization.

A total of 424 unselected patients admitted to the Institute's Washington Heights Community Service were screened for the study. Ninety patients (22 percent) were assigned at random to either day care or inpatient care.

During the first four weeks, approximately twice as many of the inpatient group had to be transferred to an intensive care unit because of dangerous or disorganized behavior.

In measuring return of the patient to full-time community life, day care was clearly superior. Average number of days until discharge back to the community was 48.5 for daypatients and 138.8 for inpatients. A final follow up made six months after admission to the study found that this trend still held.

Nor was there any evidence that the early release of day care patients resulted in increased early readmission rates. On the contrary, more of the inpatients showed up again for admission than did the day care people.

The study was part of a project under the Hospital Improvement Program which has the goal of stimulating and assisting improved care and modern methods in public mental hospitals.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

The trouble with most problems afflicting the human race is that people attack the problems backwards, sideways and every other way except straight on

Take the problem of basketball. As I understand from reading the sports pages recently, recruiting of basketball players by the colleges is getting out of hand, in fact scandalous.

"You wouldn't believe what's going on," one prominent coach said when a bunch of colleges were being investigated for violating recruiting rules, like paying the players far more than the rules allow, giving them free automobiles, getting their parents cushy jobs, etc.

As it appears to me, basketball is now a game of height, and since the number of nigh school seniors who have reached a height of 6 feet 6 inches, or 6 feet 8 inches, or in a few cases among the top-ranked teams 7 feet, is limited, naturally there's a wild scramble for them all over the country and it's no longer considered unusual for a boy say in New York to decide to get his higher education in California for example, although any other combination of states can be used. Tall boys just seem to get a better education at distant schools.

College professors who set up the recruiting rules are thus fighting a losing battle, because wnen the demand exceeds the supply, the price jumps, whether it's basketball players or T-bone steaks.

The answer to the problem is simple. Instead of setting up more rules and hiring more people to enforce them, all you'd have to do is raise the baskets four to five more feet.

A 7-foot boy would then have a lot less advantage over a boy 6-foot-6 or even just 6 feet.

If the recruiters come up with a 10-foot boy, raise the baskets still highter. I don't know anything about genetics but I don't believe they'd ever have to raise the baskets till they came out of the roof of the gym.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Prisoner at Large!

Security was so lax at a state penitentiary that prisoners could get whiskey, drugs, and even guns without too much trouble. One night a hardened criminal stole a gun and made good his escape.

He was recaptured within a few hours, but not until he had invaded a nearby home and shot a housewife in the leg. In due course, she demanded damages from the state.

"They run that jail too carelessly," she charged in court. "Escapes are common. Furthermore, they knew that this particular criminal was dangerous. Therefore, the government is to blame for my being shot."

The court agreed, and the woman won a substantial verdict.

Injuries inflicted by escaped prisoners are leading to a growing number of damage claims against either prison officials or the state itself. The law says penal institutions must be run with fair regard for the safety of those outside the walls.

Nevertheless, the authorities are not to blame if the escape could not reasonably have been prevented. Nor are they liable, even though negligent, if the injury to the outside citizen was not reasonably foreseeable. Thus:

Another escaping prisoner, commandeering a passing automobile, caused the driver to suffer a fatal heart attack. But in this case the prisoner had a good record, with nothing to forewarn officials that he could be dangerous if he got loose.

Accordingly, when the victim's family filed suit for damages, the court turned them down.

What if an escapee steals a car and then, driving recklessly, knocks down an innocent pedestrian?

In such circumstances, courts have generally rejected the victim's claim for damages, even though prison officials were to blame for the escape. Reason: although officials should have foreseen that the prisoner might run away, they could scarcely have foreseen that he would also be a bad driver.

State Now Has Complaint Office

AUSTIN

Now if you get a lemon, you're not necessarily stuck with it. The Texas Department of Agriculture has recently established a Consumer Affairs Office in Austin with Barbara Harper in command.

Seeing the need for such an office, Commissioner of Agriculture John C. White added it to the Consumer Services Division in December. Because the Affairs Office has no legislative authority to take legal action, the answer to many consumer problems lies in personal contact with the seller.

Mrs. Harper spends much of her time on the telephone, handling complaints from consumers who feel they have been cheated or treated unfairly. Her role is that of liaison between buyer and seller.

"Nine times out of ten, if I talk to the (offending) stores, they are willing to make amends," she said.

Working closely with the Consumer Services Division Mrs. Harper can refer problems to the proper state or local agency. Commissioner White has alerted all Texas Department of Agriculture facilities to be conscious of consumer complaints and to give aid where possible. Action can often be obtained by a letter from the Department to the offenders.

If the problem is related to weights and measurement of commodities, the Consumer Services Division can be of help. This Division has been working for the buyer to make certain that weights are accurate in many of his purchases.

Mrs. Harper invites people to write or call her at the Texas Department of Agriculture, Consumer Services Division, 113 San Jacinto, Austin 78701. Telephone, 512 475-2154.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

Treat Garden For Nematodes

By Bill McCutchen

Home gardeners complain each year about root knot nematodes in their tomatoes, okra, beans and other vegetable crops. These microscopic worms may be the reason for sickly plants that don't respond to fertilizer or water. Nematode presence can be recognized by galls and knots on plant roots.

If nematodes have been a problem in the past, treat your graden this spring before planting.

The most widely used chemical for nematode control contains dibromochloropropane (D B C P). It is available at farm supply stores.

No special equipment is necessary for treating home gardens. Liquid materials can be applied with a quart fruit jar with a ten-penny nail hole punched on each side of the lid--one to pour from and the other to let air into the jar so the liquid will pour evenly. Pour the proper amount of fumigant diluted with water into each 100 feet of open furrow at least 6 inches deep.

Granular DBCP can be sprinkled by hand into the open furrow, but be sure to wear rubber gloves.

For row treatment, place the fumigant in a 6-inch deep furrow directly under seed rows or transplant rows.

Broadcast treatment can be made by opening a 6-inch deep furrow using a hoe, spade or other implement. Furrows should be no more than 12 inches apart from center to center. A broadcast treatment is much more effective than row treatment; however, more fumigant and expense is involved.

Whether using the liquid or granular materials, cover the treated furrows immediately to seal the fumigant into the soil. This can be done by dragging a weighted board over the treated area. Then sprinkle the soil lightly with water.

Follow directions on the container as to time lapse before planting.

SPRAY PECANS

Now is the time to begin treatment for pecan phylloxera and obscure scale on pecans. Satisfactory control should be obtained with the use of a dormant oil at the rate of 3-3 1/2 gallons per 100 gallons of water (1/4 pint per gallon).

RUBBER TREE

It takes about seven years before a rubber tree plant produces the raw material used in making natural rubber. The tree's breeding cycle, from cross-pollination to production, takes 25 years.

FB Leaders Receive Reports

The Milam County Farm Bureau held its monthly meeting March 1 with 15 directors present.

Bobby Berry and Bill Arthur gave a report on monthly production in the insurance service. H. M. Yager gave the membership report for the month showing that 18 new members had signed up during the membership drive.

Reports were also given by Earnest Dodd on TASCO and by Morris Coward on a winter forage tour on April 8 in a four county area.

Carl Grothe told about the Young Farmers and Ranchers state conference at Brownwood in February. He reported a good attendance with District 8 represented by six counties.

Edwin Lehmann reported on an area meeting for presidents held in Bryan in February. A committee was appointed to serve on a study group for the constitutional revision study, Reeves Brown to serve as chairman.

The board took action to enter into a cotton program for Farm Bureau members, with Earnest Dodd as chairman.

News From ASCS

Producers signing up for set-aside acreage under the feed grain and wheat programs may elect to use their set-aside land for livestock forage or for approved alternate crops, with a reduction in program payments.

A full understanding of provisions governing set-aside land is essential. Producers should check with the ASCS county office about any details they are not sure of.

Basic provision governing all set-aside acreage is that it must be land suitable for crop production with a potential equal to the average productivity of the farm.

This provision on the quality of set-aside land applies across the board -- whether the farmer plans to hay or graze the set-aside, plant an alternate crop on it, or keep it idle.

If the set-aside acreage is found to be of lower average productivity than the average of cropland on the farm, then the program payments will be based on the potential yield of the set-aside land and not on the established yield for the farm.

Producers should also know there is a minimum size and width rule for areas designated as set-aside. Generally, a set-aside area which is less than an entire field must be at least five acres in size, with a minimum width of 132 feet.

This is a general rule, and some exceptions have been stipulated. Full details are available at the ASCS county office.

A set-aside inspection and measurement service is available at cost from the ASCS county office. This service can insure a producer that his designated set-aside is acceptable and in compliance with program requirements.

Turning to the provision, new for 1973, which permits haying and grazing on set - aside acreage. The single most important item for a producer to remember is that the ASCS county office must be notified before haying or grazing is begun on set-aside acreage.

The conserving use requirement continues for set-aside land even though the land is used for grazing or haying. This means that crops ineligible for grazing or haying include soybeans, grain sorghums, corn, sweet sorghums for silage, and matured small grain.

Producers may sublet grazing, haying, or silage rights on their farms' set-aside acreage, but this does not relieve them of payment reductions or responsibility for following program requirements.

Also, by taking a reduction payment, producers may grow the following crops on set-aside land: castor beans, crambe, guar, mustard seed, plantago ovato, safflower, sesame, and sunflower.

Payment reduction for grazing, haying, cutting silage, or growing these alternate crops will be 30 percent of the average payment rate per acre of set-aside under the basic feed grain plan, whether the set-aside is under the feed grain or the wheat program.

In summary, farmers are reminded that set-aside land must be average quality cropland for the farm, that the ASCS county office must be notified before the set-aside is grazed, hayed, or cut for silage, and that if they choose to use set-aside for the purposes or for approved alternate crops that they also accept a payment reduction.

Titsworth To Speak At Seminar

Dr. Robert M. Titsworth of Cameron will be a seminar speaker at the 5th annual Southwestern Animal Health Conference to be held March 17-18 at the Convention Center in Waco.

The non-profit conference is specifically designed to deal with animal health problems encountered by stockmen in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and New Mexico. It is co-sponsored by the Texas Veterinary Medical Association and Texas A&M University.

The conference is open to everyone for a minimal pre-registration fee of $15 or $20 at the door. Pre-registration may be made, and information obtained, by writing to the Southwestern Animal Health Conference, 513 Scarbrough Building, Austin, Tex. 78701. The registration fee entitles a person to attend all of the conference seminars which will include sections dealing with swine, equine and bovine health, dairy problems and feedlot management.

MORE SCREWWORMS

Two screwworm cases were confirmed in Hidalgo and Willacy counties on Feb. 12 after an 18-day lull. According to fficials of the Southwest Screwworm Eradication Project, the cases point up the fact that there are still screwworms in South Texas despite recent weather unfavorable to the flesh-eating pest. However, officials remain hopeful for light screwworm year due to low infestations presently in the northern Mexico overwintering areas. Texas now has recorded 48 cases in 1973.

We're proud our seeds have earned the trust of farmers like these...

Henry Gonzales recorded a yield of 3,683 pounds per acre with Pioneer 846. He liked the way it stood in the field and says, "It threshed real well." It'll be Pioneer 846 again next year for Henry Gonzales, Rt 3, Box 171, Cameron, Texas.

J. A. Looney planted Pioneer 8417 and got a yield of 4163 pounds. He was well pleased with the way this yellow endosperm produced. Pioneer will be the choice again next year for J. A. Looney, 1907 N. Jackson, Cameron, Texas.

Because we were the first company to commercially produce hybrid corn and with 17 years of work on sorghum, we know a lot more about hybrids and how to make crosses that really yield. We've had longer to test and re-test our varieties. We've stuck with some of our early crosses, and we keep developing new ones to fit every growing condition imaginable.

For Central Texas we recommend these sorghum and forage varieties . . .

Pioneer Brand 846 – excellent drouth resistance – MDM resistant – a full season hybrid – our most popular sorghum variety

Pioneer Brand 848 – excellent grain quality – short, strong stalks – good roots – excellent thresher – full season hybrid – good resistance to smut and MDM

Pioneer Brand 988 – sorghum sudangrass hybrid for pasture, greenchop, hay or haylage – ready to cut or graze in a little more than a month – regrows again and again all summer with adequate moisture and fertilizer

When you choose a hybrid for your land, choose one from the company that started it all . . .

Planting Plans Postponed . . . Six Counties Lose . . . What's Your Beef . . . International Cooperation.

The 1973 Texas spring planting season is off to a slow start. Cotton planting in the Lower Rio Grande Valley has been delayed at least a month due to cold, wet weather.

Texas Department of Agriculture officials report less than five per cent of the Valley's cotton has been planted thus far, and probably most of that will have to be replanted. Normally, about two-thirds of the crop would be in the ground in the Valley by now.

Meanwhile, on the High Plains--550 miles to the north--harvest of the 1972 cotton crop is now virtually complete. Rains and cold weather delayed harvest in that area for several weeks.

Wet conditions over the state are also causing some headaches for livestock producers, who normally welcome rains. Too much rain is keeping fields too muddy for grazing in many areas of the state. Supplemental feeding is continuing with some shortages of hay and cottonseed products reported.

SIX counties in Texas have lost their "modified-certified brucellosis" status because of non-compliance with certain minimum requirements of the cooperative state-federal brucellosis eradication program.

The counties in Texas are Denton, Freestone, Harrison, Kaufman, Navarro and Wood.

Counties initially receive the "modified-certitied brucellosis area" status when the areas are in compliance with all requirements of the eradication program.

According to officials, the counties did not meet one or more of the following requirements:

Retest infected herds for brucellosis within six months;

Test or quarantine the herd of origin when an infested animal is found through the market cattle testing program;

Test a dairy herd within 30 days after a suspicious brucellosis milk ring test has been reported.

Necessary corrective steps are being taken so that the counties may again receive their modified-certified brucellosis area status.

IF YOU'RE concerned about getting the most for your food dollar--and who isn't--you should be utilizing some information from the Texas Department of Agriculture about beef. TDA has available some tips on how to get the most from your beef dollar.

These include a beef chart showing the cuts of beef and cooking instructions for the various cuts and a pamphlet titled "Stretching Your Beef Dollar." Both are available by writing the Texas Department of Agriculture, Box 12847, Austin, Texas 78711.

INTERNATIONAL cooperation is providing Texas agricultural producers with better varieties of grain sorghum and forage sorghums. About 200 acres of grain sorghums are being grown to determine purity tests in Guatemala and Mexico.

This program is being carried on through the seed division of the Texas Department of Agriculture under direction of Bill Staffel. Texas is the largest producer of hybrid sorghum in the world. "We have the highest quality of certified hybrid sorghum seed in the nation," Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said.

Texas produces about 40 per cent of the nation's supply of grain sorghum annually.

Public Meeting Set To Discuss Brazos Program

The Brazos River Authority will sponsor a public meeting March 21 in Waco to discuss the study being undertaken to develop a basinwide water quality management program for the Brazos River watershed and portions of the adjoining gulf coast area.

The meeting will be held at 2 p.m. in Waco's Convention Center.

Colonel Walter Wells, general manager of the Authority, said preliminary plans for the study, developed in the past several months, will be discussed and suggestions and comments will be sought from the general public.

The Authority was designated by the Governor's Office more than a year ago as the State agency to develop a program to improve and protect the quality of surface water in the 45,000 square miles of the Brazos Basin and adjoining areas of the gulf coast.

Colonel Wells said that interested citizens and citizen groups, representatives of governmental agencies, representatives of industries and business, farmers and ranchers and "all who may be interested in good water" are invited to attend the meeting.

"In order to help assure that the final plan is responsive to the desires and needs of the people throughout the planning area," Colonel Wells said, "this public meeting has been scheduled to describe the study that is being undertaken to develop the basin-wide water quality management plan, to answer questions concerning the study and the plan and to offer an opportunity for public comment and suggestions."

The plan will be developed and carried out in close cooperation with the Texas Water Quality Board, the Division of Planning Coordination in the Governor's Office, and the regional planning agencies and local governments in the planning area. All of these agencies, together with other interested State and Federal agencies have representatives on a planning advisory committee established by the Authority to help guide the planning effort and assure proper coordination with all concerned.

Weekly Market Report

"Beef prices have increased considerably during the past year due mainly to higher prices to beef producers and increased costs in marketing," Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt said this week.

The consumer marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texa A&M University, also cited beef values for the next week or two.

"Look for the best beef values on chuck roasts and steaks, ground beef, beef and calf liver, and round steaks and roasts.

"Pork values appear in hams, picnics, shoulder roasts and steaks, end-cut loin roasts and chops and pork liver."

Turning to poultry counters, Mrs. Clyatt maintained that chickens remain a bargain in most meat departments even at higher price levels, as do grade A large-sized eggs.

Fresh fruit and vegetable items in best supply at the most economical prices include apples, oranges, grapefruit, avocados and bananas.

Also potatoes, sweet potatoes, turnips, hard shell squash, broccoli, cabbage, carrots and dry yellow onions.

Count Dracula Was Real, Professors Now Claim

By Paul Giguere
BOSTON

Yes, there really was a Dracula.

And in real life just as weird a character as ever portrayed on the screen by actor Bela Lugosi.

The vampire prince of Darkness, hissed at but loved through countless B-grade movies as Count Dracula, was in reality Vlad Tepes (the impaler) who ruled as prince of Walachia (now part of Romania) from 1456 to 1462.

Six years of research by two Boston College professors have led them to the conclusion that while Vlad was not actually a vampire he was a bloodthristy blue blood and not a nice guy at all.

A favorite practical joke of his was to invite elderly, crippled people to a lavish dinner and then set the banquet hall on fire.

Despite his quirks Dracula today has a growing cult of followers, and travel agencies sponsor special "Dracula Tours" to his native Romania, where he's something of a national hero, according to Prof. Raymond T. McNally, professor of history and director of the Slavic and East European Center at Boston College.

A long time fan of horror movies, McNally and Romanian - born colleague Dr. Radu R. Florescu---a descendant of the Boyer aristocarcy which opposed the rule of Vlad Tepes--have put down the results of their Dracula investigations in their book "In Search of Dracula."

In research that took them to Romania, other Slavic countries and to Germany, Turkey, and Russia, the professors came across Dracula-like accounts in dusty old 15th and 16th century manuscripts in archives in virtually every country.

One account common to the manuscripts in most of the countries dealt with emissaries sent by the Turkish sultan to Dracula's court says Florescu, a professor of history at Boston College.

"The prince told the emissaries to remove their turbans before the throne," related the professor. "They replied that it was the custom of their country not to remove their turbans. At that, Dracula called in his guards and had them nail the turbans to the turks heads. Then he sent the representatives back to the sultan with the message: In my country, my customs are followed."

Aided in their research by Radu's uncle, George Florescu, famed Romanian Genealogist who found Dracula's burial place in an old church in 1931, the Boston College professors located Dracula's castle on a remote mountain peak, near Bistrita, Romania.

There was a 1,000 foot sheer drop on all sides, and the forbidding-looking, run-down structure could be reached only by crossing a rickety foot bridge.

The castle was found largely in ruins when the party of researchers finally mustered the nerve to cross the bridge. (The Romanian Government plans to restore the castle as a famous landmark.)

McNally and Florescu have made two other trips to Romania since then, and they're continuing their research into Dracula's and his father's personalities with the thought of publishing another book.

"Some people think it is a put-on," says McNally, "But it is serious historical research. This is our field."

Count Dracula was the subject of Branm Stoker's novel that came out in 1897 and formed the basis of Dracula's first screen portrayal by Bela Lugosi in 1931.

The Boston College scholars have found Stoker's descriptions of the Wallachian or Transylvania countryside and castle surprisingly accurate.

"Stoker's character was based on the real Dracula or Vlad Tepes, and was embellished with Folklore vampire tales," says McNally. "The real Dracula was not a vampire, although he'd certainly be considered bloodthirsty."

Homemaking Goes Co-Ed, Career Oriented

The Homemaking Department of Yoe High School, once a haven for 'girls only' has been invaded by boys (38 in number) enrolled in an introductory course on home and family living and consumer education.

Also open on a co-educational basis are standard Homemaking courses in child care, home and family, home management, clothing and textiles, foods and nutrition, housing and home furnishings, and home nursing.

The home and family living course that has caught the interest of junior and senior male students covers a broad spectrum. Students learn to plan a working budget, they study housing and home furnishing, family planning and value shopping. They also learn to use homemaking equipment including a short session in the kitchen.

Homemaking instructors say the family living course is designed to help young people set realistic goals for their lives and gives them a view of what marriage and family living takes in terms of human and material resources.

Enrolled in homemaking classes this semester are 38 boys and 128 girls. Instructors are Mrs. Alice Hughes, Mrs. Jean Henderson, Mrs. Dorothy Foster and Miss Lynn Gaddis.

Another major program in the Homemaking Department at Yoe High is Cooperative Education for juniors and seniors. Now in it's third year, the program offers on the job training as well as classroom instruction with 15 hours a week of actual work experience.

Nineteen students are presently enrolled in the program in the following Cameron business:

St. Edward Hospital - Linda Rylander and Joan Evan, Hensley - Russell - Sue Ann Kenedey, Thya Inc. - Debbie Simicek, Berniece's - Becky Marek, Back Door Shop - Phillys Hanel, B&B Studio - Laura Helsley, McLane's Red and White - Kathy Ejms, Central Butane - Cindy Mitchan;

THEY CAN BAKE AN APPLE PIE - Kenneth Dusek, Hubert Pittman, Dennis Hardwick, Tommy Braden and James Benford are among 38 young men enrolled in the Yoe Homemaking Department 'Home and Family Living' Course where they gain an introduction to culinary art with emphasis on consumer education and budgeting.

Certificate Of Need Bill Would Slow Rising Costs

Rising medical care costs can be slowed if the Texas Legislature will enact a strong certificate of need bill and revise the Texas Pharmacy Law. That was the conclusion of the final report of the Senate Interim Committee to Study Rising Medical Costs.

In making the report to the 63rd Legislature the Committee stated that the enactment of a certificate of need bill and revision of the Texas Pharmacy Law would serve at least to slow the rise in Medical Care Costs and enable the providers of health care in Texas to more efficiently serve the people."

The committee recommended a certificate of need revision would require hospitals of all types to apply to an appropriate health facilities planning council for a certificate of need in the event a hospital decides to make a capital expenditure in excess of $50,000. The outlay would not be approved by the council unless there was a definite need for the expansion or the pruchase of equipment. Upon approval, a certificate of need would be issued, and the hospital would be free to carry out its plans. The failure of a hospital to comply would jeopardize its license", it was reported.

At present, 21 states have some form of certificate of need legislation. The committee believes that such a legislative measure would reduce waste and unnecessary duplication, thereby helping to keep hospital costs down in Texas.

The Texas Hospital Association has already proposed a certificate of need bill for Texas. That bill, H. B. 512, was introduced February 15, 1973 in the Texas House by Rep. Don Caveness of Austin. It was introduced in the Texas Senate by Senator Jack Ogg of Houston.

Caveness' bill would require a certificate of need as a prerequisite for hospital construction or addition to existing facilities in the amount of $100,000 or more. His bill will also make a certificate of need a requirement for hospital licensure.

The method of implementing Caveness' bill would be initially through the local health planning agency and then through a proposed health facilities council.

In the event that there is no health planning agency in a community the application for the certificate of need would go directly to the health facilities council.

Accent on Health

If you sneeze and sniffle during the ragweed season, if you have cramps, diarrhea, or rash after eating a particular food or drug, if you wheeze of itch when around a cat, a horse, chicken feathers, or some other substance--then you may be suffering from an allergy.

An allergy is an unusual reaction to a substance, an abnormal behavior of the body to it. Half of the people in the world sneeze or sniffle, wheeze or itch, suffer intestinal disturbances or other uncomfortable symptoms because of their allergies. Half of the adult population in Texas and one-third of our children are afflicted, say state health officials.

In some it occurs only at certain seasons of the year, in others at fairly long intervals, while in many it is a daily problem.

When the allergy-producing substance enters your system and comes in contact with the anitbodies in the cell, that union produces dramatic effects. The best known of the results of these miniature explosions is the release of the chemical histamine from the cell. Normally, presence of histamine stimulates production of adequate amounts of antihistamine which would of course cause no symptoms to develop. Sometimes enough antihistamine is not produced to counter the levels of histamine.

Histamine is perfectly harmless when inside the cell, but once released outside the cell it produced undesirable changes. It dilates and congests blood vessels so that fluids from your blood stream leak out into the tissue, clausing swelling.

If this change takes place in the skin the reslut is hives. If this reaction occurs in the nose, the membrane swells and you have a condition known as hay fever or "sinue." Another action of histamine is to contract or put into spasm involuntary muscle fibers--muscles not controlled by your own will, such as stomach, intestine, urinary bladder, or the uterus. If this muscle effect takes place in the muscle fibers around the bronchial tubes, asthma is the result; if in the intestine, cramps and diarrhea may be the effect.

At least one in three Texans who have untreated hay fever will develop asthma, say state health officials. In many cases, seasonal asthma may fail to subside with the end of the season and may become chronic.

Which describes your feelings?

Yes___ No___ I could do more enjoyable things if I had the time.

Yes___ No___ I have a good occupation and my supervisors approve of my work, but personally, I'm not satisfied.

Yes___ No___ My realistic conception of an ideal life is very different from that which I'm living now.

Did at least one question apply to you? If so, it's quite possible that you're not getting the most out of life. Only you know the reasons, but whatever they are, God can help you.

Among many other things in the Bible, He promises freedom and a new life to those who sincerely seek it.

Why don't you come to church this Sunday and let Him know that you want to be free of your chains?

To live a half-life when a full life is available isn't really like you.

Is it?

Expedition To Seek Gold Reef

By David Jensen

PERTH

Early Australian explorer Harold Lassiter really started something in 1897 when he returned from the Gibson Desert with stories of a reef of gold 12 miles long.

Expeditions are still searching for it and the latest is being planned for some time this year.

If tales of the Lassiter find are proved, it could be the richest ever gold find in Australia, but one that has cost the lives of about 20 searchers from about 40 expeditions.

The latest is being organized by a Perth mapmaker, Laurie Strike, 42, who intends using seven utility vehicles, a light aircraft and finely-detailed maps of the regions where Lhere Lassiter said the reef was located.

Strike plans to search large areas of the Givson Desert, a waterless and remote area of massive sand dunes, about 1,200 miles east of Perth in western Australia, for the reef, which is said to barely protrude above ground level.

Tales of Lassiter's "find" have varied over the years and attempts by himself to relocate the gold yielded no proof of its existence.

He died in 1931, at the age of 52, during an attempt which was sponsored by the Australian government and individuals who bought an interest in advance.

This was during a depression, but previous attempts by Lassiter to interest people proved fruitless because during the time of the original strike the western Australian gold boom was in full swing.

The explorer, noted for his poor navigational sense, did produce some samples of "greenstone which contained three ounces of gold per ton." But these were not high enough to stimulate interest during the boom.

Some estimates of the value of the reef, if it exists and there are many disbelievers-are as high as several hundred million dollors.

Strike claims that previous expeditions were poorly prepared with inadequate water and food supplies and a lack of proper equipment.

He is seeking 20 partners who would become shareholders in a company he is forming called Central Australian Gold Exploration.

One member could be Lassiter's son Bob, a 50-year-old mining engineer who has already been on several searches for his father's discovery--including one last year organized by an Australian newspaper.

The expedition did return with some gold but it's source is not known.

"Whether Lassister's reef exists or not I don't really think has a bearing," says Strike. "There is more to the expedition than that."

Tourney Set At Franklin

Officials of the Oak Grove Country Club at Franklin will have its third annual Blind Bogey Golf Tournament April 14-15. The event is expected to attract over 200 Central Texas golfers and valuable prizes are to be given to the champion medalist and flight winners.

The club is located five miles from Franklin on Farm Road 46. The clubhouse is air conditioned for year round comfort. The nine hole golf course is in excellent condition and its large greens are comparable to the best, even in large cities, according to club officials.

The tournament is open to all amateurs and plans have been made to make it interesting for them. There will be four flights in blind bogey so every player will have a chance to win.

The registration fee for players is $8 which includes participation in the tournament, barbecue sausage for morning players, refreshments for all, a barbecue dinner served on the grounds or in the clubhouse, and eligibility for all prizes.

Personal carts are permitted on the course and there will be carts to rent. Tee off time daily is at 7 a.m. and 2 p.m. Visitors are invited to attend and those who wish to have lunch may do so at $2.50 per plate.

Persons desiring information about the tournament are invited to write or call Emory Scott, president of the club, or Dr. T. B. Carroll, chairman of the arrangements committee. The address is Bremond, Texas or telephone 818-746-3271.

Italian Tops Speedway Record

COLLEGE STATION

Former Indianapolis 500 winner, Mario Andretti has erased the unofficial world's closed course speed record at the Texas World Speedway with a new record speed of 211.765 miles-per-hour.

Driving a new turbo-charged, Offy-powered Mark II Parnelli, Andretti circled the 2-mile, high-banked oval with an elapsed time of 34 seconds flat to break the old record of 208.695 set by Gordon Johncock at the same track.

The car designed by Marice Phillippe looked like a low flying jet as it came screaming off of turn two and down the long backstretch.

Andretti said following the record run, "The car handled beautifully and really sticks to the track at high speeds. I think we can run even a little faster, it's just a matter of changing a few minor ajustments on the car."

Whey asked what speed he predicts it will take to win the pole position for the upcoming Texas Twin 200's, he said, "It's hard to say, maybe 212 miles-per-hour. We'll be running in excess of two-hundred miles-per-hour in competition."

Mario Andretti will return to Texas World Speedway when qualifying activities begin for the Texas Twin 200's scheduled for Saturday, April 7th.

Divorce Quick In Santa Domingo

By Ernesto Mendoza

SANTO DOMINGO

Under a big religious mural in Santo Domingo's palace of justice, the black-robed judge peered over a crucifix at a nervous American housewife standing in front of his desk.

She answered five simple questions and in 30 seconds her 30-year long marriage had been dissolved.

It takes longer to bake a wedding cake than to get a divorce in the Dominican Republic which is competing with neighboring Haiti for the lucrative "quickie" divorce trade given up by Mexico.

American actress Jane Fonda recently obtained her divorce here from French film director Roger Vadim.

Package tours are thrown into the bargain and for the price of a quick divorce, one can bask in the glorious Caribbean sunshine and dine on charcoal broiled lobster in Santo Domingo's luxury El Embajador Hotel.

In the hotel, Mexican lawyer Manuel Espinosa runs a glass-paneled office bustling with secretaries typing out documents for scores of American divorce applicants.

Espinosa, a 44-year-old family man with three children, moved to the Dominican Republic from Ciudad Juarez on the Mexican side of the U. S. border in 1971.

At that time, the Mexican government had just killed the "quickie" divorce trade by requiring six months residence for divorce seekers.

There is no such limitation in the Dominican Republic which is only too eager to pick up the millions of dollars in tourism earnings that Mexico, conscious of its moral image, decided to give up.

Espinosa's clients are met at the airport by a guide, driven to the hotel in a limousine, taken to court the next morning for the divorce and flown back home all in 24 hours.

Others bring their boy-friends, dash off to the U.S. Consulate to get married again and spend their second, third or fourth honeymoon among the palm trees here.

Espinosa, bespectacled and smartly dressed, figures that since he opened business here, he has handled 4,000 "quickie" divorce cases which earned the Dominican Republic $1.2 million not counting the money spent on hotels, meals, sightseeing and shopping.

He handles about 50 cases a week, charging $400 each -$300 of which goes to the Dominican Government.

From his bookshelf, he took out a book entitled, "The World of the Formerly Married" by American writer Morton M. Hunt. The book had been autographed by the author.

"I got him a divorce and he sent me a copt in gratitude," he said.

ACTIVE VOLCANOES

Though an erupting volcano brings to mind pictures of flowing rivers of boiling lava, not all active volcanoes emit lava, the National Geographic Society says. Mount Taal in the Philippines, with a history of death and destruction, has spewed forth noxious gases, steaming mud and ash, and white-hot rocks--but nover lava.

SPIDERS DIE

Few spiders live more than two years, and the males, who die soon after mating, rarely survive even one, National Geographic says.

MOBILE HOMES

California has more mobile homes than any other state, about 197,000, followed by Florida and North Carolina.

WHITE HEAT -- A 5000 - degree flame slices through an eight-inch slab of solid steel with the precision of a surgical laser at Aluminum Company of America's central machine division, Alcoa, which produces more metal in Texas than any other state, said the oxygen - acetylene flame liquefies the steel into a white molten state and then proceeds through the slab. The flame is controlled by an electric eye that reads designs from paper patterns. The cut pieces are fabricated into machine parts for use at Alcoa plants around the country.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the Internal Revenue Service and published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. Can I designate $1 of my tax to go to a particular presidential candidate?

A. No. However, if you wish, $1 of you tax ($2 if you are married and filing a joint return) may be paid over to presidential candidates of a specific political party. Just check the box on IRS Form 4875 (in your tax forms package), fill in the name of the party, and attach this form to your tax return.

Instead of designating $1 of your tax for a particular party, you can designate it for a non-partisan general account for all eligible candidates. Just check the box provided.

My adjusted gross income is $13,000. Can I take the $2,000 standard deduction on my return?

A. No. The standard deduction is 15 percent of your adjusted gross income up to a $2,000 maximun. Fifteen percent of your adjusted gross income is $1,950. This is your standard deduction, not $2,000.

Q. My son turned 20 in 1972. Does this mean that I cannot claim him as a dependent any more?

A. No. If you son did not have gross income of $750 or more or was a full-time student for at least five months of last year no matter how much money he made, you may still claim him as a dependent, regardless of his age, if all the other dependency tests are met, including furnishing over one-half of your son's total support.

Q. I installed a new water heater in my home last year. Can I deduct the cost on my tax return?

A. No. But you may add the cost of this item to the basis of your property, so that it will be taken into account in the event that you sell your home.

Q. Are gambling losses deductible?

A. If you itemize, you may deduct your gambling lisses incurred during the year, but only to the extent of your winnings. Gambling winnings must be reported as income.

Q. I still haven't gotten my W-2 form from my employer. What should I do?

A. Contact your employer. He is required by law to furnish his employees W-2 forms by the end of January. Your return must be filed on time. If you do not have all your Forms W-2, report all of your income and attach a statement explaining how you computed any tax withheld for which you claim credit, but for which you have no Form W-2.

If, after you have filed your return, you receive a Form W-2 for income that you did not include in your return, or if you find your estimates of income and withholding tax to be incorrect, file an amended return on Form 1040X. This form is available at any IRS office.

Q - I purchased a car for my son last year. Does the amount I paid count toward his support when I figure out whether or not I can claim him as a dependent?

A - No. The purchase of an automobile, whether by you or your dependent, is not considered when determining total support.

Saving up to make your dreams a reality can be pretty frustrating. You try to figure out a way to tighten your belt a little without pinching too hard. But you can't find any sensible solution, and you end up figuring no dream is worth all that fretting and worry.

But there's an easy savings scheme—U.S. Savings Bonds. Easy to buy... and one of the easiest ways to save. Just sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or buy them on a regular basis at your bank. Either way, that money gets tucked away, and you get a chance to do something more than just dream.

If you've got a dream, buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's a scheme to make dreams come true.

Now E Bonds pay 5½% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds mature in less than six years.

OUR NEW MEAT LABELS TELL YOU WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

Our new meat identification program takes the guesswork out of selecting meat and how to prepare it . . . helps you be a "smarter" meat shopper and a better cook. Our improved meat label tells you at a glance the type of meat (Beef, Pork, Lamb or Veal), where it comes from, and the specific portion or common retail name.

WE'RE CONCERNED...

Hello. I'm Carol Scroggins, and I would like to help you learn more about the products in our stores and how these products can help you get the most from your shopping dollar.

We believe you should receive a dollar's worth of value in products and services for every dollar you spend. Consumerism and the consumer are very important to those of us involved with supplying food and related products. That's why we have established a department of consumer affairs to assist you.

In the weeks to come I will help by sharing with you some of the basics of good food selection for best economy and nutrition, by suggesting menu ideas and recipes, by answering your questions, and by showing you how we will be working to keep in tune with your concerns. Our store offers you low prices while not skimping on quality or service.

There are ways to cut your food expenses while maintaining your family's good nutrition. Here are a few of them:

1. Plan before you shop! Read our food ads to find the best food buys, keeping in mind your family's likes and dislikes – if they won't eat it, it isn't economical at any price!
2. Buy when supplies are plentiful! Fruits and vegetables are less expensive in season; oranges are in good supply now, and are an excellent source of Vitamin C. Plan to use oranges in unusual ways, such as in salads.
3. Buy a brand you know represents quality responsibility! Our brands often offer savings of 5, 10 or even 20 per cent over national brands. Read the labels to know what you are buying, and buy according to grade, content, and intended use.
4. Buy a less expensive cut of meat, such as Beef Chuck Roast! A different cut, and a different method of preparation, add variety to your menu. Beef's not all steak, you know. Use poultry, fish or a meat substitute instead of beef. Cheese is an excellent substitute for meat, and a good source of calcium as well.

I'm looking forward to working with you in the weeks to come.
